

2018年度慶應義塾大学経済学部 英語

I	(1)	1		(18)	4
	(2)	2		(19)	3
	(3)	3		(20)	3
	(4)	3		(21)	4
	(5)	2	III	(22)	2
	(6)	1		(23)	4
	(7)	3		(24)	1
	(8)	4		(25)	2
	(9)	1		(26)	2
	(10)	5		(27)	1
II	(11)	1		(28)	1
	(12)	3		(29)	3
	(13)	4		(30)	1
	(14)	4→1		(31)	3
	(15)	3		(32)	1
	(16)	4		(33)	2
	(17)	1		(34)	2

※一部解答を修正しております。前の解答で採点した方のため、変更前の解答も記録してあります。ご了承ください。

IV

A1 On look,Watanabe doesn't look well I wonder if he didn't get any sleep.

B1 No.He came back from his business trip in London at midnight.

A2 It must be tough since he also had a meeting first thing in the morning.

B2 Working is important but it defeats the purpose if you fall ill.

V

I think that the legal drinking age should be lowered to 18 in Japan. One main reason for this is the responsibility an 18 year old has.

If one is allowed to make important potentially life-changing decisions like to marry, vote, work and drive, it seems only reasonable to be allowed to have an alcoholic drink. It is illogical that one has the right and responsibility to make all of these choices, yet not be seen responsible enough to consume alcohol.

Therefore, it is fair to say the drinking age should be lowered to the same as all the other age limits.

Another reason is that it will help cut down alcohol related deaths in colleges. Despite My watch's claim in the 2013 article that "college education is not about drinking parties," like it or not, drinking parties and gatherings are often being held. Most Japanese students are 18 when they enter college and even though they are not legal, they consume alcohol under the influence and pressure of their seniors. It is difficult for them to call and receive the help when necessary, which sometimes becomes too late, potentially leading to death. Lowering the drinking age would allow teenagers to safely socialize in college.

For these two reasons, I believe the drinking age should be 18 in Japan.